Everything comes to him who waits, and after a long wait, the Red Sox, having been expected to win the championship, are now the favorites to win the championship. The Red Sox, who were expected to win the championship, are now the favorites to win the championship. The Red Sox, who were expected to win the championship, are now the favorites to win the championship.

The eleven innings were the most hotly contested of any game played here this season. It was nip and tuck all the way, and anybody's victory until the tragic denouement. By bringing a man home in the ninth, Strader was again instrumental in winning the game for the Red Sox.

A right smart crowd turned out to view the exhibition in their summer regalia, and numerous fair ladies and many brave gentlemen made a pleasant color scheme. All were on their toes in about every inning, whooping and yelling, and "holering" themselves hoarse. Never was the grandstand so animated—quips and cracks flew thick and fast, the repartee being constant.

Those Danville Bucs clawed up the features of our hopeful lawnmakers, but they met foemen worthy of their claws, and didn't feel any too confident of victory until the last three runs came sweeping over the plate. However, they won, and went back to their table d'hôte dinner much overjoyed in spirit.

It was too bad that our team did not win; they did all the heavy hitting, and although guilty of several errors, fielded with unlimited ginger. But Howard could not stand the strain, and we lost.

Not a man reached third on either side until the ninth round, and he scored for Danville. Then, in order to give the Richmond rooters a sore throat for a week, little "Sandy" Sandherr swatted the ball for three bags, and was brought in by Mann, making the score 1 to 1. Neither could do anything in the tenth, but in the final frame black sorrow settled upon the shoulders of the local fans—the deed was done and naught could alter the ending. Howard pitched good ball with the exception of the last three innings, when he threw up the sponge. Ison got a single and a two-bagger, and Riggs ripped off a long fly that was good for half the circuit. Ryan was the heavy hitter for his bunch, getting three nice singles. The Danville fans had it in for "Sandy" Sandherr, giving him enough to rattle an iron man. Walker pitched a steady game for his team, and received faultless support.

Ison made a nice stop and throw in the third, and a pretty catch in the eighth, in the latter inning he threatened to score, but was cut down by a neat double. Heffron went out at first, but Lipe walked. Kanzler singled, sending him to second. Then Riggs sent a buzzing grounder to Reinhardt, who made a difficult stop and caught Lipe running, thus threatening to second and flagging Kanzler.

But the real story began in the ninth. Doyle singled through second, but was forced out when Fisher reached first on a fielder's choice. Ison's old heave in an attempted double allowed Fisher to reach second. Doyle later passed to third as Henn went out at first. Then Strader singled over second, scoring Fisher. Stafford singled, but Reinhardt fouled out to Boyle.

Riggs fanned in the Lawmakers' half. Then sturdy "Sandy" strided to the rubber with his giant-killing resting on his shoulder. The second ball that came over he swung on viciously, sending the pellet spinning down the right foul line clear to the fence. When the dust settled he was seen holding down the third base. Timman sent a hard bouncer to Reinhardt, who scored Sandherr. The batter, however, was thrown out at first. Ison followed with a wallop to the left garden fence, but Boyle fouled out to Stafford.

Ryan reached third in the tenth, but was left there. Richmond went out one, two, three.

Then came the gruesome eleventh. Fisher singled to right, being sacrificed to second by Henn. Strader reached first on a bad throw by Sandherr. Stafford reached first on a fielder's choice, when Howard tried to catch Fisher at the plate. His throw, however, was wild, going to the grandstand and making Fisher safe, while Strader and Stafford passed to third.

and second. Howard, completely gone to the bad, next made a wild pitch, scoring Strader and advancing Stafford to third. Reinhardt's single to left scored Stafford. Reinhardt stole second, and then put himself out, running, and then put himself out, running, and then put himself out, running.

Weather permitting, and there are many motorists who hope it will permit, the automobile race meet under the auspices of the Richmond Automobile Association will be held this afternoon at the Fair Grounds.

Extensive preparations have been made for the success of the meet, and many close and exciting races are expected. The parade yesterday afternoon of the finest cars in the city was a decidedly attractive prelude to the meet. Seventy-three automobiles were in the procession, and thousands witnessed the largest gathering of horseless vehicles ever seen in this city.

The parade was led by Chief Marshal Gordon with Chief Werner and several other city officials in his car, and was followed by others filled with ladies, who carried Japanese parasols, and made an attractive feature.

The concourse started from the City Hall at 5:30 P. M., proceeding by Broad Street and returning via Grace and Franklin Streets.

The first race will be called to grace at 3 P. M. sharp.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate a large crowd and many vehicles. A band will furnish music for the occasion. The officials have arranged to have each event follow close on the heels of the preceding race and there will be no delay in starting.

In case of rains this morning the track will be in too muddy a condition for the races, and the meet will be postponed until next week. It is hoped, however, that the elements will be favorable and that the show that was in progress at midnight will not do sufficient damage to cause a postponement.

THREE IN AIRSHIP
TOLEDO, OHIO, May 22.—A Roy Knabush established a new world's record yesterday when he successfully flew his big new airship, carrying himself and two assistants with him. Never before has an air craft that was dirigible been propelled and guided through the air in America carrying other than the driver. But to-night, when the test was made, this new big bird rose and traveled and was handled with full control.

With Knabush at the wheel and Roy Knabush at the controls, the airship started the engine, driving the propeller at slow speed. The acrobates were adjusted at the controls and the ship was pointed almost straight up.

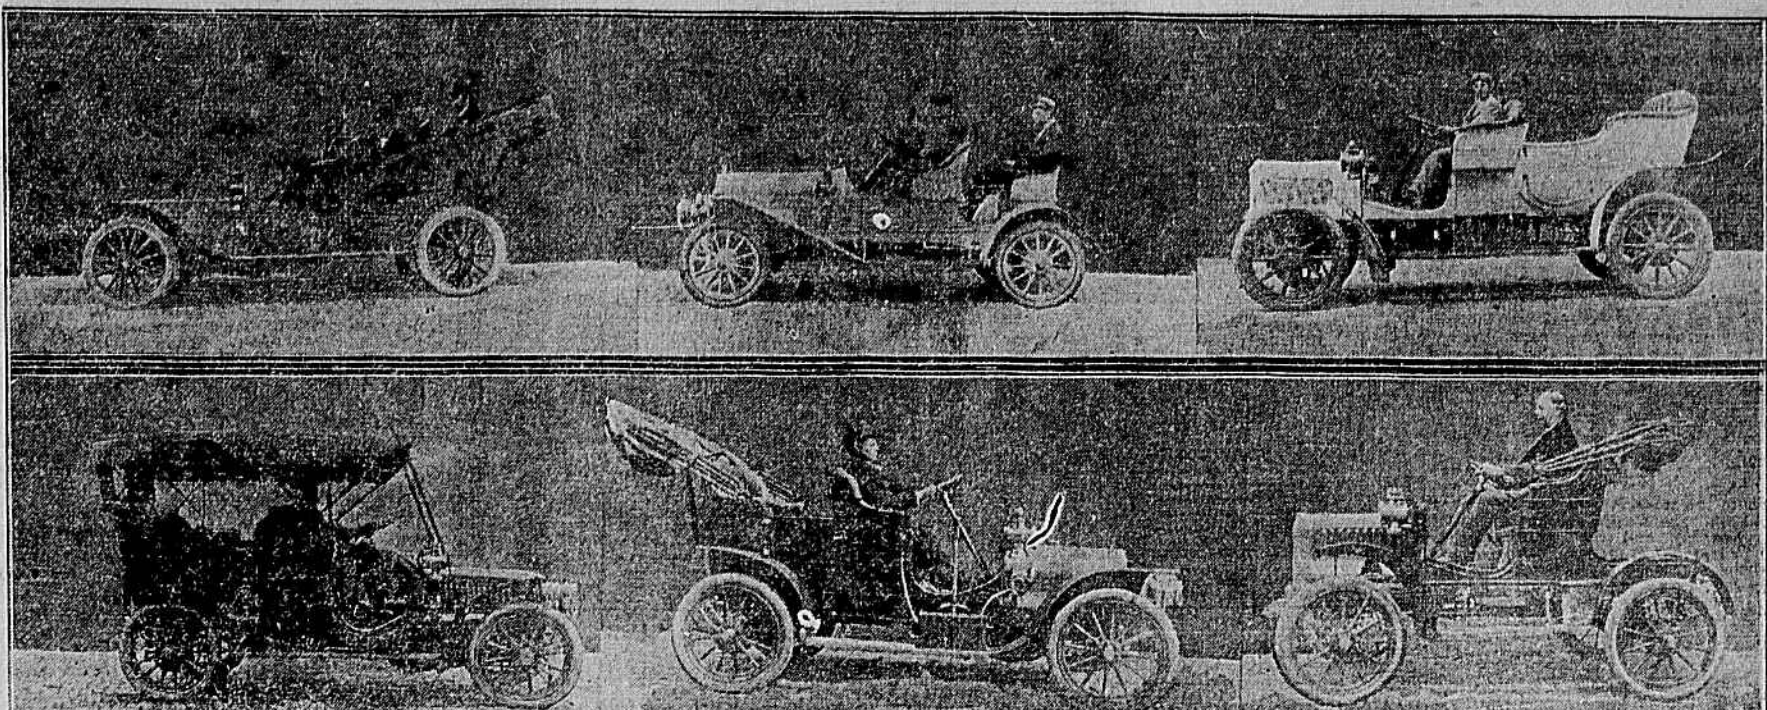

Slowly at first, and more rapidly as it gained momentum, the big bird, with Knabush at the wheel and Roy Knabush at the controls, started the engine, driving the propeller at slow speed. The acrobates were adjusted at the controls and the ship was pointed almost straight up.

He delighted the thousands of people gathered by the earth and rapidly ascended again, this time making a circle of several blocks around his aerodrome, finally coming to a full stop about two blocks ahead of his aerodrome. Then, by means of the aerodrome alone, Knabush descended to within feet of the earth and headed the nose straight for the entrance of his canvas house.

Sporting Editor of The Times-Dispatch.

Sir:—If you have space in to-morrow's paper I would like you to explain how it happened that in Wednesday's game that Heffron was at bat five times and Lipe, who followed him, was at bat only three times, and Kanzler, who followed Lipe, was at bat six times. Then we come down the list further and we find that Ison was at bat only two times, and he seems to have played through the whole game.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,
Sincerely,
Richmond, Va.
A batter who gets his base on balls, or is hit by a pitched ball, or sacrifices, is not counted as bat. It is only when the case that a man gets more hits than his number of times at bat. In the Randolph-Macon-William and Mary game last week, Ison was at bat twice and sacrificed twice, and although he played in the entire game, he was not counted as bat at all.
